

A Resolution to Define American Policy regarding East Asia to Deter Conflict in Taiwan

1 WHEREAS, The Republic of China (also known as Taiwan) considers itself sovereign and 2 thus entitled to self-rule; and
3 WHEREAS, The Republic of China is a constitutional republic which gives its citizens
4 more political influence and freedom than the People’s Republic of China; 5 and
6 WHEREAS, The People’s Republic of China views the Republic of China as a member 7 state without sovereign rights, and the military of the People’s Republic of 8 China has been ordered to be ready to invade the Republic of China by 9 2027 to ensure that status; and 10 WHEREAS, The Republic of China produces 65% of the world’s semiconductors and is a 11 necessary part of the global economy; and 12 WHEREAS, The People’s Republic of China may still be dissuaded from invading the 13 Republic of China if the United States officially reaffirms its commitment to 14 recognizing the sovereignty of the People’s Republic of China over the 15 Republic of China; now, therefore, be it
16 RESOLVED, That the Congress here assembled declares that if the Republic of China
17 were militarily invaded by the People’s Republic of China, the United States
18 would use military force to defend the Republic of China; and, be it 19 FURTHER RESOLVED, That the United States reaffirms its commitment to not recognize the 20 sovereignty of the Republic of China except in the event of such an 21 invasion.

Introduced for Congressional Debate by Parkway West High School.